- The mittens are knitted in garter stitch.
- For every row, the first stitch is always knit; the last stitch is always slipped as if to purl with the yarn in front.
- Make 1 left: Insert left tip under the horizontal ladder between last stitch worked and the next stitch from front to back; then knit this lifted stitch through the back loop.

Knit the other mitten piece

Repeat the steps above.

Finish the mittens (using a single crochet stitch)

1. For the right mitten, lay the knit piece in front of you, with the original cast-on on your right and the thumb pointing away from you. Folding at the notch created with rows 38 and 39, fold the left side onto the right side, lining up the top curves of the mitten's front and back.
2. Fold up the thumb piece from the final cast-off. Then fold the long thumb piece from the cast-on over it.
3. First, using a single crochet stitch to connect the two layers, crochet around the top curve of the mitten, starting at the junction with the thumb.
4. At the end of the curve, clip off with 3-inch excess, and sew in the ends on the inside of the mitten.
5. Next, using a different color (if you like), start again at the thumb. Crochet around the thumb and down to the cuff. Continue crocheting all around the wrist. Snip off and sew in ends by weaving them in on the inside of the mitten.
6. For the left mitten, lay the knit piece in front of you, with the original cast-on on your left and the thumb pointing away from you. Folding at the notch created with rows 38 and 39, fold the right side onto the left side, lining up the top curves of the mitten's front and back.
7. Fold up the thumb piece from the final cast-off, then fold the long thumb piece from the cast-on over it.
8. First, using a single crochet stitch connecting the two layers, crochet around the top curve of the mitten, starting on the side opposite the thumb.
9. At the end of the curve and at the junction with the thumb, clip off with 3-inch excess, and sew in the ends on the inside of the mitten.
10. Next, with a different color (if you like), start at the cuff near the seam. Crochet around the cuff first, then up the thumb seam and around the thumb to the junction. Snip off and sew in ends by weaving them in on the inside of the mitten.
